I am an avid collector of recipes. A young lady, a former KFC employee, was looking at my recipes one evening when she discovered this one. She told me that the recipe was close, but that I should remove the vinegar and lemon juice and replace them with tarragon vinegar. Tarragon vinegar is the secret. Note: This is one of the recipes I adopted in the Great 'Zaar Orphan Adoption of 2005.

For me, coleslaw is a part of the traditional Thanksgiving dinner... I can't remember a single Thanksgiving without it. My mother was "famous" for her coleslaw, and the aunts, uncles, and cousins always requested it. She always made the coleslaw for the extended family gathering and always chopped the cabbage by hand.

I worked for KFC for 3 years and coleslaw making was a near daily occurrence. This is the real recipe scaled down to table size. I see lot of recipes claiming to be the real thing but none are. This is the real thing. The sugar amount is not a typo. ***I updated the recipe because I left out the onion
